In 1924 there were 248 cases and in 1923 considerably more.

There have been 7 cases of paratyphoid reported this year to

MENACE TO SHIPS.

MARVELLOUS" FOG WARNING DEVICE AT CALAIS.

Paris, August 16,-A new era in navigation is foreshadowed by the P.m. inauguration at Calais of a submarine "sound house" which, by high frequency sound waves transmitted through the water, enables the captain to bring his ship to harbour securely and speedily even in the most foggy weather.

The production and utilisation of these sound waves are a development by Professor Longevin of the curious electrical quality of quartz., discovered by M. Jacques Curie in 1800, to which he applied the high, frequency alternation of wireless apparatus. Similar apparatus installed in a ship amplifies signals from the "sound house", on the pier-head. These are made audible in a telephone on the bridge, and by correlating the soundbeam and wireless signals sent out from the pier-head the captain can tell the exact position of the ship. It is suggested that the apparatus which was used in war-time for the detection of submarines may in future render the old-fashioned chart obsolete.

WIND-JAMMER.

GAY WELCOME BY THE STEAMSHIPS.

IN THE THAMES.

A month overdue, the full-rigged sailing ship Monkbarns-one of the last, five of her kind on the British register-still wandering here and there over the seven seas-came into the Thames like a picture out of the romantic past.

It is the first time that one of the rearguard of the great British fleet of full-riggers which has, now passed into oblivion has been at London since the war. As she passed up the river and it was seen that the British Ensign was flying on the gaff and the house-flag of a British firm, Messrs. J. Stewart and .Co., was on the mainmast. every steamer ing the waterway sounded a siren greeting.

The crew of the dream-ship. perfect harmony of line and contour, reciprocated the welcome in traditional style. Lined above the figurehead of Pegasus, they sang an old chanty chorus:

> Blow, bullies, blow, For Californ-i-o.

Many captains and first officers of the great liners served their apprenticeships in the Monkbarns. Three and a half years have clapsed since the sailor was last at a British port, and only two members of the deck crew of 24 she carried when she left Liverpool then have returned on board.

On the voyage from Valparaiso to Bondon the master, Mr. William Davis, had to be transferred to hospitali, at. Rio de Janeiro, where he. died three days later. The mate," Mr. Richard Davis, of Nevin, North Wales, took command and his successor, was a seaman who was in the forecastle when the windjammer left Britain.

COUNT'S DESERT MARRIAGE.

A romantic marriage in the great Gobi desert of Mongolia, twenty years ago, between two explorers, Count Jacques Pouly de Lesdain, a Frenchman, and Miss Mabel Bailey, an American girl, has been occupying the attention of the French Courts in a nullity suit brought by

When the Count de Lesdaln

started on his journey across the desert he was unaware of "the identity of his companion, who wore male costume and looked like a handsome youth. It was only when the party was far from civilisation that Miss Bailey's identity became known. It is stated that, at first, the Count was very angry, but finally he fell in love with his beautiful companion and they became engaged. As the party was many menths' journey from civilisation, as represented by the Peking legations, the couple took advantage of the chance presence of two Belgian missionaries to get married. There is one child of the marriage. The Count asked for a decree of nullity on the grounds that, under French law, a marriage abroad had either to take place before a French consul or a diplomatic representative or according to the ordinary laws of the country. Marriage law in Mongolia, it was argued, stipulated that a woman should either be captured or, failing that, purchased from "her parents for an agreed number of camels or sheep. Twice as many sheep had to be paid for a widow as for a young girl. I As these formalities had not been observed, the Count's counsel pleaded that the
